BOSSHARD INDORSES PROGRESSIVES' PLAN FOR UNITY MEETING

Replies Favorably to Letter Sent Out by W. S. Goodland of Racine Urging a Conference.

La Crosse, Wis., May 22.—Senator Otto Bosshard of this city, progressive republican candidate for governor, in a reply letter to W. S. Goodland of Racine today subscribes to the conference plan of progressives to the end that "unity of action" may be secured. The Bosshard letter is in reply to one sent by Mr. Goodland asking that he participate in the conference. It is understood that a similar letter was sent to Gov. McGovern. The reply of Senator Bosshard follows:

"La Crosse, Wis., May 22, 1916. Hon. Walter S. Goodland, Racine, Wisconsin. Dear Mr. Goodland: I have your letter of May 20th, notifying me of a proposed conference of progressive republicans to endorse candidates for state offices and plan an organization for the primary campaign. You ask my co-operation in making this conference a success. I am fully impressed with the sincerity of purpose back of this movement. The cause represented by progressive republicans of this state is so important and its perpetuation so vital to the interests of the people that all men unsparingly interested in that cause should welcome this plan. I have spent nearly twenty years, in common with other progressive republicans, in promoting the best of my ability legislation for the common good. I am convinced that the present administration is seeking to destroy all that we have wrought by legislation and administration. We must unite to oppose this program. I, therefore, subscribe fully and without reservation to the plan and I will assist to the extent of my power to make it accomplish the purpose sought—unity of action, and the formation of an effective campaign organization. My only desire is that the conference will seek and find a candidate who will most ably and truly lead our forces. The conference should have before it the only object of promoting progressive government in Wisconsin. The success of this cause is vastly more important than the personal life or ambition of any candidate or individual. Again, let me assure you that I approve of your effort and will do everything in my power to promote its success. I am sure that the wisdom and purpose of the men who will participate in this meeting, and will abide by their action. Yours very truly, (Signed) Otto Bosshard."

Markets or Territory?

Some national advertisers seek to cover territory, others hunt for markets, and when they find them, cultivate them. Frequently they ask the aid of good newspapers like The Gazette in finding markets. And when they find what they are looking for they advertise in newspapers. Thus they not only reach consumers, but they entice retailers to an extent not possible in any other way. Manufacturers more interested in definite markets than in wide territory are invited to make inquiries of the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, World Building, New York.

AIM FURIOUS DRIVE UPON FRENCH LINE

BEGINNING OF FOURTH MONTH OF VERDUN BATTLE MARKED BY TERRIFIC FIGHTING.

BALK GERMAN ADVANCE

French Repulse Assaults on Slope of Dead Man's Hill and Force Germans to Abandon Avocourt Blockhouses.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Paris, May 22.—The battle of Verdun, the longest and most thoroughly contested individual struggle of the war, entered on its fourth month today. The Germans are hammering at Dead Man's Hill, where the most furious fighting of the three months' conflict has taken place. Clinging desperately to the trenches that they have wrested from the French on the lower slopes of the hill, the Teutons have hurled 60,000 men forward along a seven-mile front, from Avocourt Wood to the Meuse, in a desperate effort to seize the coveted summit. They have gained a footing in the French first line at a cost of several thousands of lives, but judging from the experience of the past, it will not be a difficult task for the French to dislodge them before they are able to follow up their advance.

Terrific Fighting Continues.
French grenadiers occupied several blockhouses in Avocourt wood on the Verdun front in the course of severe fighting last night.

The struggle west of Dead Man's Hill was terrific. The war office statement says the attacks of Germany infantry were repulsed. The blockhouses in Avocourt were abandoned by the Germans. East of the Meuse, infantry fighting occurred at the Heaumont fort, which was captured yesterday by the French. The Germans attacked this position, the statement asserts, and were repulsed with heavy losses.

The British officers and men are still at Kut and Bagdad. Some will be sent to Damascus. Tribesmen Defeat British.
Berlin, May 22.—Constantinople advices to the Overseas News agency report defeat of British forces in a battle with rebellious tribesmen in the province of Darfur in Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. ## WISCONSIN TO HONOR VETERANS TUESDAY

Custom of Honoring Wisconsin Soldiers Started by Governor Fairchild in 1888.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Madison, Wis., May 22.—Preparations are being made in nearly every city in the state to pay honor on May 30, Memorial Day, to the 16,000 Wisconsin soldiers who met death on southern battlefields, in hospitals, and in prison camps.

The custom of honoring the Wisconsin soldiers who died in the war started by Governor Fairchild in 1888 when he issued a proclamation to the residents of Madison asking them to join in the national custom of observing Memorial Day.

Among those graves which will receive marked attention will be that of Louis P. Harvey, former governor of the state, who lost his life in the spring of 1892 while on an errand of mercy in the south.

Governor Harvey went to the south following the battle of Shiloh—the bloodiest battle ever fought on American soil. Following the battle thousands of wounded soldiers were rushed to hastily prepared hospitals. Two regiments of Wisconsin soldiers had been cut virtually to pieces—their bodies lying about the battlefield. On account of the great number of wounded they lacked medical attention.

When Governor Harvey heard of the battle and the great need for medical aid he sent to every part of the state for contributions. Within twenty-four hours he was on his way south with a corps of medical assistants, bandages and medicines.

At Chicago he found a carload of supplies sent on from Milwaukee, Janesville and Beloit. At Cairo, Mo., he found a carload of supplies. Landing the expedition found Badger wounded.

After doing a great amount of good the governor started to return to Wisconsin. As he was passing through Savannah he stumbled and fell into the water. A member of the party picked him up but to no avail. His body was found later about sixty miles down the river and taken to Madison where it was placed to rest in Forest Hill cemetery.

His wife became an army nurse, ministering especially to Wisconsin soldiers who were wounded. She worked so earnestly that before many months she was known throughout the western army as the Florence Nightingale of Wisconsin.

ILLINOIS VETERANS ENCAMP AT DECATUR

Civil War Veterans From All Parts of Illinois Open Encampment Tomorrow.

Decatur, Ill., May 22.—Civil war veterans from all parts of the United States are arriving here today to attend the jubilee encampment of the Illinois Grand Army of the Republic, which opens here tomorrow. The encampment marks the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the G. A. R. and is particularly noteworthy because of its being held at the place of the organization's birth.

All the streets and buildings of Decatur have been decked with flags in honor of the veterans. In all, 10,000 visitors are expected here in the next few days. The nature of the encampment will be the grand parade which will be held Wednesday afternoon. Hundreds of school children and national guardsmen will participate.

Commander John M. Snyder, Past Commander W. O. Cochran, Past Commander Robert Mann Woods and Past W. R. C. Commander Inez J. Bender will preside at the parade.

Many surviving members of Post No. 1, which was organized in Decatur on April 6, 1866, will be here to attend the encampment. The surviving members are Henry Corman, Colorado Springs, Co. A. M. Lapham, Springfield, Mo.; D. A. Woodland, Arcoia, Ill.; P. R. Williams, Quincy, Ill.; James F. Steele, Richard F. Jones, C. F. Imboden, W. M. Martin, E. H. Hays, N. M. Baker, Frederick Schwab, R. H. Johnson and T. J. Abel, all of Decatur, Ill.

A handsome bronze tablet will be unveiled by the Women's Relief Corps of Illinois only a few feet distant from the spot where Post 1 was organized.

Major Benjamin F. Stephenson of Springfield, Ill., is credited with having first conceived the plan and inaugurated the work of the G. A. R. He obtained for an assistant J. W. Routh, also of Springfield, and the two drew up the ritual of the order, which that not a single printer in Springfield had been a soldier. Upon learning that two Decatur printers—J. N. Collier and Joseph Prior—had served in the war, they went to Decatur and had them set the ritual into type.

In return for this co-operation it was decided to found the organization in this city. The building in which the first meeting was held is yet standing in Decatur.

Following the founding of Post No. 1 at Decatur, posts were organized in nearly every city of prominence in the northern tier of states.

OPERA SINGER SUES CANADIAN M. P.'S SON

Married Ten Years and She Wants Divorce.—He Took Money from Her to Buy Classy Dogs.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, May 22.—Reference to blue blooded anticipating the battle of Hastings and an austere demeanor, tumbled with fondness for pedigreed canines and alleged neglect of a loving wife, which did not extend to a distaste for her jewels, was contained in a bill for divorce filed here today by Mrs. Anna F. Hardy against J. J. Hardy, described as a millionaire, Canadian, of Fingstow, Ontario, son of a prominent member of the Canadian parliament.

According to the allegations of the bill which charges desertion, the complainant, a grand opera singer, married Mr. Hardy April 24, ten years ago, and was deserted by him June 2, 1911, after having been subjected to treatment which wounded her sensibilities and led her to doubt the love of the man who had given her his name. The petitioner alleged that instead of the kindly welcome she expected at her husband's home, she was subjected to neglect of even ordinary courtesies of life, and in addition, money which was sent by her parents for her hospital expenses, when she was ill, was spent by her husband in the purchase of pedigreed dogs.

She also alleged that diamonds and jewels which she possessed to the value of $100,000 were borrowed by her husband and in their stead, she received certain shares of stock which were later given into her husband's possession and which she has been unable to regain.

screen. In fact they would not in some cities where more care and attention is paid to the character of the pictures shown.

This matter has been taken up and discussed at members' meetings, at Woman's clubs and at civic meetings, but thus far the net result is that the same calibre of pictures are shown as heretofore and nothing is apparently done to stop them. It is time, perhaps, for the city officials to act and the mayor and council to appoint a picture censor who is qualified to judge what should and should not be shown upon the screens of theaters.

The moving picture houses have come to stay. This is evidenced by the fact that they have been transformed from mere store fronts into more pretentious structures. That some of the leading lights of the legitimate and vaudeville stage have gone into the "movies" and millions of dollars are expended in staging various wonderful productions to make them as realistic as possible.

Moving pictures are instructive. They are a wonderful creation of the present age, but like everything else they should not be abused. In order to attract crowds to a theatre a manager should not permit pictures which might be considered to use a slang expression—"off color." There are plenty of good, bright, attractive films on the market and they can be obtained. Why not enforce this rule that the lewd, the suggestive, the immoral, the objectionable pictures be barred from the theatres where women and children and young men and young women go to be amused?

Think it over and see if the thought does not appeal to you. It is well worth considering. Libraries bar objectionable books from their shelves; why not do the same with the objectionable pictures? It works both ways and the theatre management that allows this and only gives the good, clean shows, will in the end be successful.

COMING EVENTS.

All over the state of Wisconsin the republicans are organizing. The democrats do not need to, they are already a unit, but the republicans have been widely split by internal dissension for years past and as a result the state swung into the democratic presidential column four years ago. Now they are organizing to redeem it to the republican fold. Of course the same internal differences exist; but gradually they are being eliminated and only a remnant of the ultra-progressives remain in certain localities.

The attack upon Governor Philipp and his administration continues. It is to be heard chiefly in Madison, the home of ultra progressives. It is a fact prevalent with the university spirit, who feel that their experimental plaything, the state government, has been taken away from them and they can only see the evils of the present business administration that will not permit foolish expenditures of money for experimental government.

The same objection is being raised to Jeffris and his candidacy for the governor's nomination for just the same reasons. They fear that should Mr. Jeffris be successful a powerful prop of theoretical government in the person of the present senior United States senator, would be wiped away—and they are right, too. No wonder they are fighting mad and seek any excuse to condemn both state and national aspirants for office who see through their masks and know them for what they really are.

The university is all right in its place. It is a wonderful institution, but it is not the state of Wisconsin by a good deal. No taxpayer regrets one cent of his money that is used to make it bigger and better, but he does not want to see it wasted. The divorcing of the pet university professor drawing a salary from the state as instructor of the university and also from the state as an expert in some official position has been a sad blow to many and they resent it. It was their special privilege and like the policeman who collected his revenue of peanuts from the corner stand and then found the stand covered with wire, they have revolted and are showing their anger as much as possible.

The senate, in its earnest desire for new light on the Brandeis case, is anxiously seeking to find whether more political capital is to be made by confirming or rejecting the nomination.

It is surprising how people will regard with indifference all appeals to clean up their yards, and will hasten to do so the moment some neighbor begins to fix up his.

Memorial day is dear to the hearts of the patriotic American people, as the date of the first double-header ball games of the season.

UNCLE ABNER

I see that a specialist out in Kansas City says that men with blue eyes make the most reliable husbands, but I have seen a good many reliable husbands with eyes that were black and blue.

A fellow who indulges in the insidious habit of playing a slide trombone can't be too careful. Mr. Amory Hicks with the Silver Cornet band, was banged in away on "The Stars and Stripes Forever," the other evening during a concert, when he reached a low note and shot his arm out the end of the slide on a $40 bunnet on the head of Mrs. Lemuel Higgins, who was sitting in the first row, and yanked it from her head, also about half a bushel of hair. When Lem got through with Harry in folding chairs were laid up for repairs and the artistic atmosphere of the concert was entirely broken up.

HINTS TO GOOD COOKS

There is always one sure way to tell when an egg is bad. Boil it soft and then open it with a common case knife or a spoon. If it is bad, you will not be long in doing it.

A very good substitute for macaroni when company comes unexpectedly is white clothes line. It can be cut up into lengths desired and boiled until quite tender. Then pour on the melted cheese and the tomato sauce and nine out of ten guests who have eaten home cooked macaroni before will not know the difference.

Salad dressing can be made of almost anything, but the best imitation of the genuine can be manufactured by taking two teaspoons full of gasoline, a pint of ammonia, three tablespoons of cod liver oil and a digger of axle grease. It would take an expert to detect the fact that it was an imitation.

Corned beef and cabbage make a dainty lunch for an afternoon tea. The boiling cabbage gives the house a homelike atmosphere and will prevent the guests from staying too long.

MAKING HIM HAPPY

(A school) has been established in Chicago, the purpose of which is to teach young wives how to make their husbands happy. It is not a very difficult matter, and the course of instruction should be short.)

How to make the husband happy? That seems really like a cinch. Shun all conversation scrappy. Always yield when in a pinch.

MILTON HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS HOLD BANQUET IN JANESVILLE SATURDAY

Milton, May 22.—Forty-seven students from Milton high school invaded Janesville Saturday night and repaired immediately to the Myers Hotel, there to hold the annual junior-senior banquet.

Activities began shortly after seven when it was announced that the "eats" were ready. Everybody filled into the dining room and took seats, prepared to fall in. The banquet was an excellent one, and satisfied the most particular. When it was over, David Smith, acting as toastmaster, announced that the toasts for the evening were in order. The first toast was to the seniors, to the juniors, to the faculty, to the alumni, and to everybody and everything else, and when the last toast was over, Mr. Smith vouchsafed the information that every one was at liberty to do whatever he or she liked, to amuse themselves until eleven o'clock. And, if credit is to be given to the reports, amusement was found, and it was a happy, although tired, crowd of students that arrived in Milton on the "second dog" at about one o'clock.

George Wilbur had a narrow escape Friday. He was walking on the main line track, west of the Burdick crossing, reading a paper, and hearing a train coming stepped across to the Mineral Point track in front of No. 21. The engine struck him and hurled him several feet, but very fortunately he received no serious injury and was able to work in the afternoon.

Last Tuesday the Milton College nine journeyed to Ripon, where the team received an unmerciful trimming. Beech, who did the mound work for Ripon, kept the hits well scattered, while the Riponites hit Randolph, Lush and Lamphere all over the lot. On Wednesday the locals attacked Northwestern at Watertown, where the final score was 1 to 0 in favor of Watertown. Lush, for Milton, pitched good ball. He was touched for only one clean hit, while Zank yielded three.

The game was won in the ninth when Ormsby dropped a line drive to left and Green made an error on short, while Eckman got the only clean hit in the game. Resulting from the two defeats the college gathered courage.

and slipped "one over" the St. John's cadets at Deland. The soldiers put up a strong game throughout, but went down in defeat 10 to 8. Lush again showed his ability as a thrower. Postal Clerk Risdon of Milwaukee was in town Friday. A bunch of big fellows from the Whitewater training school came down here Friday and covered the Milton grades with calomine, meanwhile scoring eighteen for themselves. The Milton highs put the kids under the Milton Junction highs at Crescent Park, Friday, seven to five, in a well played game.

Friendship springs up and grows naturally; it cannot be planted at will. Foolish friendships are often formed in youth. It is useless to talk against them, since young people always resent criticism of their friends. We must simply tolerate them and trust to the awakenings of common sense to prove all frivolous friendships false and unworthy.

Would he return to the condition his mouth was in before I treated him for pyorrhea.

So said one of my former patients to me yesterday.

Most of my patients tell me their general health improves right from the first treatment I give them.

If your gums bleed easily and you have a bad taste from around your teeth, you probably need a course of treatment to stop the sure advance of this disease.

It will rob you of every tooth in your head if you neglect it.

JANESVILLE WILL CELEBRATE FOURTH

FINANCE COMMITTEE REPORTS SHOW MONEY WILL BE RAISED.

PLAN MANY FEATURES

General Committee Will Meet on Tuesday to Formulate Final Plans for the Commemoration of Nation's Birthday.

Janesville will celebrate the nation's birthday July 4th, 1916. It is Janesville's turn. Every two years this city entertains thousands of visitors for the day by the most unique kind of a same celebration. In fact, Janesville was one of the first cities in Wisconsin to adopt the same Fourth idea and carry it out successfully. This year will be no exception.

There will be plenty of band music, lots of entertainment all day long. The city of Janesville will be revived. No other city in Wisconsin can create such an amusing feature. Then there will be athletic events, and above all, a torchlight illuminated parade in the day's evening. Nothing will be lacking for the day's enjoyment.

The finance committee which has been working for the past three days, reported this afternoon that sufficient funds were in the treasury to carry out the celebration, and this means that Janesville is going to have its usual gala day despite opposition that arose through misunderstanding that Janesville would not celebrate. There will be some small celebrations in adjacent towns, but the Janesville celebration will be bigger than ever.

The general committee will meet Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock when a final report of the finance committee is made and the definite plans for the day's program are undertaken and determined. Tentatively the arrangement is as outlined and the speaker of the day will be a man of national reputation, while the other plans will all be carried out as discussed at previous meetings of the committee.

YOUTH IS SENTENCED TO JAIL FOR THEFT

Richard Ellis Given Six Months for Stealing Auto Lamp—Three Drunks in Court.

Richard Ellis, said to be a minor, was sentenced to six months in the county jail under the commitment law, this morning when he pleaded guilty to petty larceny, the theft of an automobile lamp worth about six dollars. George Hessepauser was sentenced to pay a fine of twenty dollars or a term under the commitment law for twenty-five days. The court stated that five days was "knocked-off" from the sentence for the reason that the defendant has earnestly tried to stay on the probation wagon and had succeeded in holding the perch for many months.

John Johnson, who was found prostrate on the sidewalk and dead, but in reality was only "dead" drunk, was fined five dollars or seven days. Joe Schuman of Edgerton, a farm hand, was fined thirty dollars and five days. Chief Champion was called, and he informed the court that Schuman was taken into custody while drunk for striking a man sixteen years of age, at one of the railroad crossings Saturday night. This fact was verified and the fine changed so as to read twenty-five dollars and costs or thirty days.

CHURCH LEAGUE BANQUET AT THE GRAND HOTEL TOMORROW

Mr. Lorey will give an outline of the plans which will be followed out next year. ## PLANNING TO VISIT JANESVILLE PLANTS MONDAY AFTERNOONS

Commercial Club Directors to "Get Acquainted With Local Manufacturers Under New Plan."

Members of the board of directors of the Janesville Commercial club, at their regular weekly meeting this noon outlined a program of local factory visits and decided unanimously to devote a portion of each Monday afternoon in getting better acquainted with Janesville manufacturing plants and their officials and owners. The first visit is scheduled for next Monday. This will be at the dye works of Arthur Jones in Monterey.

Impromptu information on alfalfa from several who have given the great forage crop more or less consideration opened the eyes of many members of the board when they learned of its importance and value on the farm. They were surprised to know that alfalfa in reality is even a better crop than King Corn, both from feeding and marketing standpoint.

The talk only served to impress the men more in the importance of the campaign which will be waged through Rock county tomorrow.

This morning fifty-three farmers from the vicinity of Janesville had expressed their intentions of making the trip and witnessing the first hand illustrations to be commented upon by L. F. Graber, secretary of the Wisconsin Alfalfa Order, who comes to Janesville to meet the farmers and to be with them especially on this trip. A number almost as large is coming from Beloit and vicinity to join the local party at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. The start is to be made from the offices of the Janesville Commercial club.

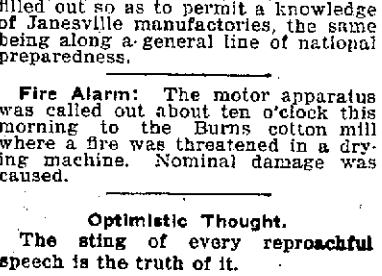

For those men living hereabouts will be furnished by Janesville business men.

A communication from the Wisconsin division of the Naval Consultory Board urged official recognition to the correspondence to permit this body to secure an inventory for preparedness of Janesville manufacturing and producing industries. Blankets will be sent later to Janesville firms to be filled out so as to permit a knowledge of Janesville manufacturing, the same being along a general line of national preparedness.

Most everyone who has had any dealings with machinery knows about the liability of oil rags and waste that have been used for cleaning purposes to ignite from spontaneous combustion; but few are aware that sawdust, when soaked with oil drippings, will act in the same way. Sawdust is sometimes seen scattered over garage floors, but this practice should be prohibited. Sand is the safest for absorbing drippings.

NEWS NOTES from MOVIELAND

by DAISY DEAN

Miss Dorothy Kelly, who is completing the last ten reels or so of "The Secret Kingdom," the new serial by Louis Joseph Vance, plays the part of a deep-eyed villainess, who, though a fashion plate to the eye, is horribly wicked of soul.

The diminutive actress—well nicknamed "Do"—in the studios—is one of those ebullient temperaments much impressed by surroundings and influences, as are all temperamental sanguine natures. As a result of playing villainess for so many weeks, and with the prospect of playing her for a few weeks more, she laughingly tells her friends that she has become inclined to true villainy in real life.

Miss Kelly was born in Philadelphia just twenty-two years ago. She is of Irish-English ancestry.

"The Light of Dawn" is the title of the feature photoplay undertaking which work was started recently in Philadelphia studios.

roll, that of a young woman who sacrifices her honor, and becomes a fugitive from justice in order to protect the name of her young, widowed sister. George Marlo appears in Miss La Badie's chief support.

Famous as a screen star, she has never appeared on the legitimate stage. She has an inborn talent for painting and drawing, as well as acting.

and enhanced all the poetic beauty and tenderness of the original. As the forsaken Cho-Cho San, the little maid of the Flowery Kingdom, patiently waiting through the long months for the return of her faithless American husband, Mary Pickford presents an innocent, confiding, pathetic figure, who proceeds through her many sorrows with unconquerable courage and endurance. Only an actress of Miss Pickford's remarkable magnetism and dramatic power could have presented a pantomimic impersonation. This photoplay will be shown again on Tuesday at the Apollo.

AT THE APOLLO.

Fannie Ward in "For the Defense." Giving another example of her versatility, Miss Fannie Ward, star of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, will be seen Wednesday at the Apollo in the photoplay entitled "For the Defense," in which she plays for the first time on the screen a feminine detective.

There is a promising coincidental feature about "For the Defense," as the author is Hector Turnbull, who wrote Miss Ward's recent sensational photoplay, "The Cheat."

The Lasky Company will release "For the Defense" through Paramount Pictures.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

Old Favorites With Kelly This Season. When it comes to keeping the same people from year to year, Sherman Kelly, owner and comedian with the Sherman Kelly Stock Company, who begins a week's engagement at the Myers Theatre, or Theatre, is in a class by himself, as evidenced by the people he has with him this season.

Glenn Cooke, the musical director with the company, and who is known as the boy wonder when it comes to tickling the ivories, has been identified with Kelly for five years, while Miss Macy Will, who will be seen in most of the leads this year, has also passed five seasons with the Kelly show.

Harry B. Sherman, Mr. Kelly's manager, and E. V. Faulhaber, the handsome juvenile man, have been under the Kelly banner for close on to four years.

Next in service comes Billy B. Ray, who acts as character man, and who is also an expert electrician, and Bill has seen three years of service. Then we have Geo. Shelton, the affable stage manager, and the La Grande Trio, who are starting their second year with the Kelly attraction, so it can be readily seen that there are very few members of this excellent organization who are new to local theatre-goers, so the polished high class performance of each play may be expected on account of the long association of the above artists with the Sherman Kelly Stock Company.

AT BEVERLY THEATRE.

In "The Ne'er-Do-Well," fascinating Panama scenery is shown, including the work of digging the Panama canal, the interiors of old Spanish homes, the jungles, and odd and interesting nooks and corners.

The cast in "The Ne'er-Do-Well" includes Kathlyn Williams, Eugenie Besserer, Wheeler Oakman, Frank Clark and others. Almost the same cast of stars that added to the realism of "The Spoilers," Beach's other great story, filmed by the Selig company, appear in the strongest character role in her career as Mrs. Stephen Cortlandt, the woman diplomat. The role of Kirk Anthony, the "ne'er-do-well," is enacted by Wheeler Oakman.

This wonderful Selig production will play at the Beverly Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, with special music.

AT BEVERLY THEATRE.

"The Five Faults of Flo" Tonight. Florence La Badie, the popular photoplay star, will be seen tonight at the Beverly Theatre in the Mutual master-piece, "The Five Faults of Flo."

The five faults are Pride, Envy, Fickleness, Extravagance and Jealousy. A comedy will also be presented.

Hazel Dawn in "The Saleslady." Beautiful Hazel Dawn, who deserted musical comedy to become a Famous Players star, returned to the footlights for a brief time not long ago. The result will be seen when the Paramount picture, "The Saleslady," is shown at the Apollo tonight. The stage was erected in the Famous Players' studio and the members of the chorus of one of New York's most celebrated musical comedies was especially engaged to do its turn while the camera while the orchestra played one of the popular tunes that all Broadway is whistling.

This, however, is not the only instance where realism has been resorted to in this picture. Before Helen, the character played by Miss Dawn, Fox release on Tuesday at the Beverly, starring William Farnum, known to fame as the $100,000 dramatic artist, is a story of unusual power and deep human interest. As penned by Captain Lawton, "The Wonderful Adventure" provides a magnificent photodrama, for the great genius of Mr. Farnum, for whom, in fact, the work was especially written and devised.

"The Wonderful Adventure" is in art biographical, said Captain Lawton recently, while discussing his latest work at his summer residence at Beechhurst, L. I. "Some of the events embodied in it actually occurred to a man still living and whose name is honored as one of the most famous of modern novelists. The idea that some of the more striking events of his life would make an impressive photoplay if transposed from my play and novel, occurred to me while I was cruising on my yacht "Omoo" in the West Indies. I at once wrote the scenario, board and put back for New York, where Mr. Fox became interested in my work and accepted it for the use of Mr. Farnum."

Youngster Felt Lonely.

On account of the crowded condition of the street car, my small nephew and I were obliged to take seats on opposite sides of the aisle, says a writer in an exchange. His place was between two extremely well nourished women, who, when they got off the car together after riding a few blocks, left what must have seemed to my tiny relative, a great space each side of him. He aroused me from the newspaper in which I had become absorbed, and amused the passengers near us by calling to me in a lonesome tone, "Auntie, won't you please come over here and take care of me?"

It's Rented.

In a particularly desolate region of the country, two travelers came on a tumble-down shack in the midst of filth and barrenness. They were discussing the improbability of human beings living there and did not see a forlorn little boy sitting in the edge of the weeds. He arose with a proud flush on his face. "Ye needn't make fun of it. 'Tain't ours. It's jest rented!"

In her earnestness she cleared away her black veil that she might see him better, and it blew out in the smoky wind. He readjusted it for her before he spoke.

"I'll go back in as cheerful a spirit as I can, mother," he said.

"There!" she exclaimed, satisfied. "That's a good boy! That's all I wanted you to say."

"Don't give me any credit," he said, ruefully. "There isn't anything else for me to do."

"No, don't begin talkin' that way!" "No, no," he soothed her. "We'll have to begin to make the spirit a cheerful one. We may—"

They were turning into their own driveway as he spoke, and he glanced at the old house next door. Mary Vertrees was visible in the twilight, standing upon the front steps, bareheaded, the door open behind her. She bowed gravely.

"We may—what?" asked Mrs. Sheridan, with a slight impatience. "What is it mother?"

"Of all the queer boys!" she cried. "You always were. Always! You haven't forgot what you just promised me, have you?"

"No," he answered, as the car stopped. "No, the spirit will be as cheerful as the flesh will let it, mother. It won't do to behave like—"

His voice was low, and in her movement to descend from the car she failed to hear his final words.

"Behave like who, Bibbs?" "Nothing."

But she was trefoil in her grief. "You said it wouldn't do to behave like anybody. Behave like who?"

"It was just nonsense," he explained, turning to go in. "An obscure person I don't think much of lately."

"Behave like who?" she repeated, and upon his yielding to her petulant insistence, she made up her mind that the only thing to do was to tell Dr. Gurney about it.

"Like Hilda the Shabbat!" was what Bibbs said.

CHAPTER XIII.

The outward usualness of things continued after dinner. In the library, while his wife sat in her customary chair, gazing at the fire, Sheridan let the unfolded evening paper rest upon his lap, though now and then he lifted it, as if to read. Bibbs came in noiselessly and sat in a corner, doing nothing; and from a "reception room" across the hall an indistinct vocal murmur became just audible at intervals.

Once, when this murmur grew louder, under stress of some irrepressible merriment, Edith's voice could be heard—"Bobby, aren't you awful!" and Sheridan glanced across at his wife appealingly.

She rose at once and went into the "reception room"; there was a flurry of whispering, and the sound of footsteps in the hall—Edith and her sister changing quarters to a more distant room. Mrs. Sheridan returned to her chair in the library.

"They won't bother you any more, papa," she said, in a comforting voice. "She told me at lunch he'd phoned he wanted to come up this evening, and I said I thought he'd better wait a few days, but she said she'd already told him he could." She paused, then added, rather guiltily: "I got kind of a notion maybe Roscoe don't like him as much as he used to. Maybe—maybe you better ask Roscoe, papa." And as Sheridan nodded solemnly, she concluded, in haste: "Don't say I said to. I might be wrong about it, anyway."

He nodded again, and they sat for some time in a silence which Mrs. Sheridan broke with a little sniff, having fallen into a reverie that brought tears. "That Miss Vertrees was a good girl," she said. "She was all right."

Her husband evidently had no difficulty in following her train of thought, for he nodded once more, affirmatively.

"Did you—How did you fix it about the—Realty company?" she faltered. "Did you—"

He rose heavily, helping himself to his feet by the arms of his chair. "I fixed it," he said, in a husky voice. He went to her, put his hand upon her shoulder, and drew a long, audible, tremendous breath. "It's my bedtime, mamma; I'm going up." When he reached the door he stopped and spoke again, without turning to look at her. "The Realty company'll go right on just the same," he said. "It's like—like sand, mamma. It puts me in mind of children playin' in a sand-pile. One of 'em sticks his finger in the sand-pile and makes a hole, and another of 'em 'll pat the place with his hand, and all the little grains of sand run in and fill it up and settle against one another; and then, right away it's flat on top again, and you can't tell there ever was a hole there. The Realty company 'll go on all right, mamma. There ain't anythin' anywhere. I reckon, that wouldn't go right on—just the same."

And he passed out slowly into the hall; then he heard his heavy tread upon the stairs.

Mrs. Sheridan, rising to follow him, turned a piteous face to her son. "It's so forlorn," she said, chokingly. "That's the first time he spoke since he came in the house this evening. I know it must 'a' hurt him to hear Edith laughin' with that Lamhorn. She'd oughtn't to let him come, right the very first evening this way; she'd oughtn't to do it! She just seems to lose her head over him, and it scares me. You heard what Sibyl said the other day, and—and you heard what—what—"

"What Edith said to Sibyl?" Bibbs finished the sentence for her. "We can't have any trouble o' that kind," she waited. "Oh, it looks as if movin' up to this new house had brought us awful bad luck! It scares me!" She put both her hands over her face. "Oh, Bibbs, Bibbs! If you only wasn't so queer! If you could only be a kind of dependable son! I don't know what we're all comin' to!" And, weeping, she followed her husband.

Bibbs gazed for a while at the fire; then he rose abruptly, like a man who has come to a decision, and briskly continued her mockery. "You ought to know. You've had so much experience, yourself!"

"I haven't any, Edith," he said. "My life has been about as exciting as an incubator chicken's. But I look out through the glass at things."

"Well, then," she said, "if you look out through the glass you must know what effect such stuff would have upon me!" She rose, visibly agitated. "What if it was true?" she demanded, bitterly. "What if it was true a hundred times over? You sit there with your silly face half ready to giggle and half ready to snifle, and tell me stories like that, about Sibyl pickin' on Bobby Lamhorn and worryin' him to death, and you think it matters to me? What if I already knew all about their quarrelin'? What if I understood why

She broke off with a violent gesture, a sweep of her arm extended at full length, as if she hurried something to the ground. "Do you think a girl that really cared for a man would pay any attention to that? Or to you, Bibbs Sheridan?"

He looked at her steadily, and his gaze was as keen as it was steady. She met it with unwavering pride. Finally he nodded slowly, as if she had spoken and he meant to agree with what she said.

Lord Lansdowne once had a remarkable prophecy made concerning him while he was an Oxford graduate. Jowett, his tutor at Balliol, greatly admired him and always said that he would do great things.

"There goes a man," remarked Jowett, "who is as certain to be foreign secretary in due time in whichever party he chooses as tomorrow's sun is to rise."

Of course at that time Lord Lansdowne had not the least idea of dilling such a distinguished post, and yet in 1900, after a brilliant political career, he found himself at the head of the foreign office.—London M. A. P.

He Made Good. Lord Lansdowne once had a remarkable prophecy made concerning him while he was an Oxford graduate. Jowett, his tutor at Balliol, greatly admired him and always said that he would do great things.

"There goes a man," remarked Jowett, "who is as certain to be foreign secretary in due time in whichever party he chooses as tomorrow's sun is to rise."

Of course at that time Lord Lansdowne had not the least idea of dilling such a distinguished post, and yet in 1900, after a brilliant political career, he found himself at the head of the foreign office.—London M. A. P.

CUBS ARE DEFEATED BY CHAMP PHILLIES

Phillies Beat Out Bruins in Late Rally—Ness to Play First for Sox—Giants Still Going.

Two pitchers bowled one a home run by Gary Cavanah, followed a triple off Whitted's bat, split defeat for the Cubs Sunday, the Phillies mauling them by the score of 4 to 2. When these two hits came in the ninth inning, Lavender left the club and McConnell was squeezed into the game to finish up. Cooper worked a squeeze play which scored the deciding run. Two more runs were scored by the Phillies to make the score good. Up until the ninth the Cubs looked like sure winners. Zimmerman poked a homer in the fifth and this lone run looked good to bring home the game to the Chicago club. The Cubs' hopes were lucky in getting out of tight places when the league champions to count. In the ninth inning Mulligan drove in the Cub's second run with a timely single. Ruxey and Bender pitched for the Phillies.

"Pants" Rowland manager of the Sox, is considering changing the Sox lineup for their opening game at Washington today. Red Faber is picked to do the hurling today against the rising Senators. Jack Ness, the Pacific coast slugger, is scheduled to play first for the Sox today, with Collins going back to the outfield and Fournier on the bench.

The Giants kept right on winning. For Sunday they wallowed Cincinnati by the score of 11 to 1, making it eleven straight. The Giants scored all their runs in three innings, being aided by a homer by Griffith. Fletcher at short accepted fourteen chances. Right now the Giants are playing the best ball in the National league, and look like sure winners. The fact that their victories have been made on the road shows that McGraw has the stuff for pennant fighters.

Washington climbed within half a game from Cleveland, leading the league, when they beat the Indians by a count of 4 to 2. Walter Johnson outpitched his rivals and scored the winning run in the ninth with a double. Today's game may decide the leadership of the American league.

CARDINALS IN DEBUT WIN FROM MADISON 9-1

FAST AGGREGATION IN COLLECTION YESTERDAY WHICH TRIMS CAPITOL CITY BOYS BY GOOD SCORE.

FANS LIKE THE LINE-UP

Card Followers Who Braved Cold Gale Express Satisfaction With the Players Secured.

Jamesville fans got a line on the Cardinal crew at the driving park diamond yesterday afternoon, were given an opportunity to see three players in a workout and had the satisfaction of witnessing the Cards' first win of the season. The Madison F. B. C. team was the victim and following an uneventful onslaught which opened in the fifth and continued to the finish the visitors were utterly unable to count but a single tally while the Cardinals took nine.

The day was anything but ideal for baseball. Rather it was replete in football splendor. Old Sol hid his face throughout the performance and a rather sharp young gale with a velocity of about "forty per" swung in from the east throughout the game. But even these atmospheric conditions failed to be a wet blanket on the enthusiasm of about two hundred fans who had made their way to the grounds and for the entire game they stayed to cheer the Cards to victory in the opener.

Pete Fleming, Inglis and Ruth were given turns in the box by Manager McGraw. Each performed creditably. The strong wind was bad on pitchers and players, but after a few balls each quickly accustomed himself to the conditions and the grandstand saw some rattling good twirling. All three are promising and under first-class baseball conditions can show up better than yesterday, although not one of them is a slouch when it came to real pitching.

Fleming fanned Carey, the first Madison batsman, and was so elated over the work that he proceeded to bank Tony in the "slats." Ripley, the new catcher, threw short and down to Ruth, who played short and who had covered second on Tony's dash. The Madison man was caught a yard off the sack and thereafter his teammates were a little wary about attempting to negotiate the distance with "Rip" behind the plate. "Pete" gave Corrigan a base on balls and then settled down. The next man fanned. So did the next, as fast as they could make a pass at the ball, in the second inning. The third inning added the sixth to his string and then Inglis was given the mound. "Pete" Miller, the former catcher, called the local bunch a "band" and can field and can run bases with the best of them, but most important is his ability to "work" opposing pitchers. In five times up, he drew a base on balls, succeeded in getting in the way once, hit in a tally and flied out once. He also struck out, but "Oscar" Nicholas' Cussack of the trio was a former Federal league pitcher and can deliver when needed. Inglis has promised to get himself in condition for the summer.

Ruth, who opened the seventh for the Cards, also fanned a quartet of Madison batsmen. He gave a single pass, but like Inglis, knew how to keep the hits well scattered. He got himself in a tight pinch in his opener. "Pete" Miller, the former catcher, was hit by a pitched ball, stole second and went to third on Vaughn's sacrifice. Ruth then settled down and proceeded to fool both J. Powers and Pease, two fairly good batsmen.

Denny Blake took three healthy swats at the sphere in four times up and proved to be the same old second baseman as last year. Chamberlain swatted the ball twice in five times up, his second hit bringing in a score. Olson, left field, is a heavy hitter. His three-base swat in the fifth was the signal for a mass assault and from then on the Cards scored almost at will. Hayer, at first, and Pease, at third, performed well and are sure to prove favorites with followers of the Cards. Pease, the Madison moundman, fooled even batsmen. His support was not very good. Major's errors were quickly taken advantage of by the Cards and four of them meant runs.

The visitors got but two hits during the entire game, these off Inglis in the sixth. These did not worry the big fellow and he settled down and tamed the Madison rally.

Looking at the line-up and giving it a good shifting and spicing, the Jamesville is to have some rattling good baseball this season. The string at hand now is well versed in the game and best of all they know the inside ropes. Practically every man is a good hitter and individually, yesterday, covered his position without a miss. Several games together will make the team formidable aggregation, even for the Bell. Fairies are setting the world (as it looks from where they sit in the Line City) afire with consistent winning from the fast semi-pro aggregations of this section.

Next Sunday the Cards meet the Chicago Greys at the Park association diamond. This will be a big game as the Illinois crew are going strong and one of the hardest teams in Chicago to beat.

Sport Snap Shots

MORRIS MILLER

All Mack needs is a few more pitchers like Myers and Bush and he will play a very important part in the present season. He has a good hitting team, which is hustling for him as if it had a chance to win out, and if he can be lucky enough to find or develop a couple of pitchers of class to fill out his twirling staff the team may surprise the dopesters.

Billy Killefer, the star catcher of the Phillies, whose throwing arm was believed to be dead, seems to have come back. He broke into the game at St. Louis a few days ago and the Phillies won three games in a row as a result of his good work. The comeback of Killefer means much for the Phillies. Eddie Burns has been over-worked, catching virtually every game since the opening of the season, and it is only natural that his handling of Moran's pitchers did not measure up to the work of Killefer. That Alexander's original battery mate is back in harness is sure to make a big difference in the showing of the great pitcher. He started off with Killefer behind the bat the other day and nipped a shut-out.

No Olympic games until 1920 means four more years of preparedness for the United States athletes. But, as Arthur Duffey points out, it will be a question at that time whether or not any of the foreign nations will be in a condition to take part. Bringing together the different countries in friendly rivalry is sure to cement bonds of friendship which will cast aside all thoughts of war in the time to come. It is argued by these interested in seeing the sports preserved.

Fans are wondering whom Maurice McGraw will have as his doubles partner this year. Old age and business are two things which will keep Tom Bundy out of the tournaments in this part of the country, so "Mac" will have to get someone else. It will probably be John Seachuck, the youngster who paired with Clarence Griffin. Johnson's mate, three years ago.

Eddie Collins, captain of the White Sox, does not wish Mogridge, the New York hurler, any hard luck against the other teams, but he sure hopes the arm of ailing when the Yankees visit Chicago in June. Mogridge fanned Collins three times one day recently—a feat few pitchers ever accomplished in one game.

"No team need go into Philadelphia and look for soft picking," is the way Manager Jennings of the Detroit Tigers sizes up Connie Mack's reconstructed aggregation. "Last year a visit to Philly was in the line of a joyride—if you didn't take the entire series without making much of an effort you were disappointed. This year it is a hard nut to crack. Mack has a troublesome arm. Give it any kind of pitching and it is sure to make things interesting for the opposition."

Clark Griffith, manager of the Senators, proposes that the entire staff of umpires of the American league go through regular course of training every spring, and that for all their expenses paid they should umpire such exhibition games as the various clubs may be playing before the regular season opens. In this way the umpires would get into condition physically and, incidentally, get their eyes trained.

Fielder Jones, famous leader of the Browns, expects better things from his charges, now that his pitchers are in good shape. "Our pitchers were not going well this spring, and that is why we lost a lot of games," said Jones recently. "But now they are in good fettle and I expect to have a good trip. My ball team has not been hitting as it should but it will get going in due time and then victories will come easier. Cleveland has a mighty good ball team. Tris Speaker is the spark plug of that team, as he was for Boston, and the Red Sox will suffer for the want of him all season, mark that. Groom is in great form this spring and I look for him to be one of my best pitchers."

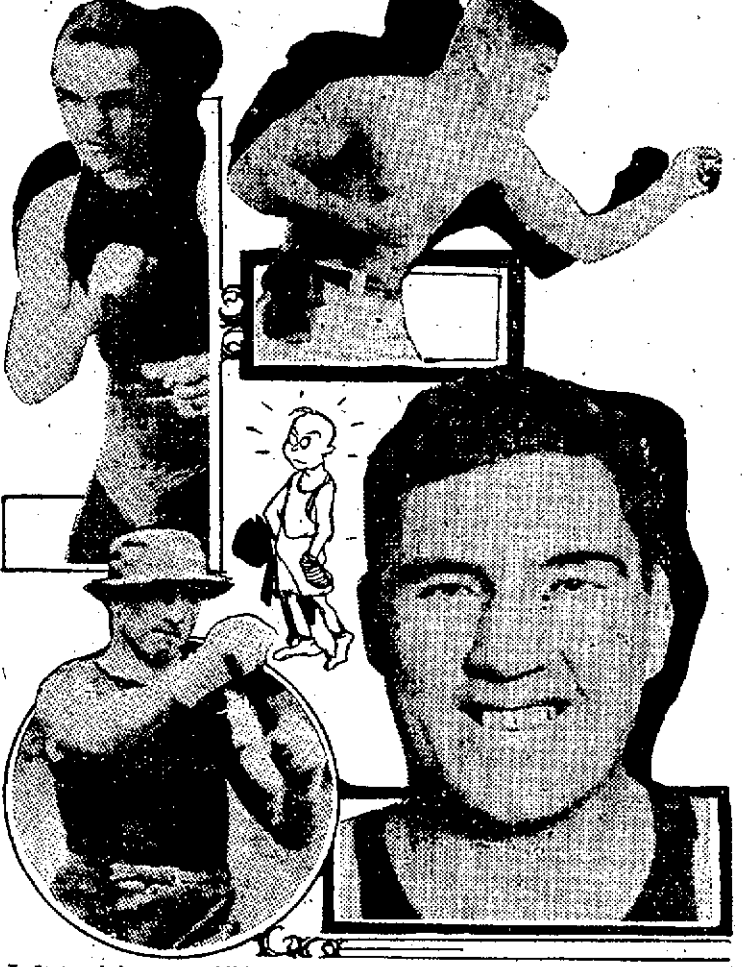

Pitcher Elwood Martin of the Oakland team in a third league continues to show his stuff and already there is talk of major league bids for him. Oakland will close a deal for him at a good price if he keeps up his good work under condition that he is to be kept until fall. Martin is an Oakland boy, picked up by Manager Elliott off the lots.

Despite the fact that Bill Donovan has been successful with the Yankees there are rumors to the effect that certain element in Gotham is working against Donovan, and that there is influence enough against him to have some effect on Donovan's chances when the next manager of the Yankees is to be appointed. There are but one or two papers in New York that are giving Donovan an even break. The others do nothing but point out Bill's faults, and blame him for every game which is lost.

The Portland club claims that it has the consent of Tacoma to use Catcher Jack Roche and ignores the notification of the St. Louis Cardinals that the catcher has been suspended. If the telegrams that Roche shows are authentic, the Cardinals appear to have tried to put over something that won't go through. Roche is said to have a message notifying him of his unconditional release after he refused to report to Tacoma.

John McGraw in his desperate effort to land a third baseman made an offer to the Vernon Coast league club for Ray Bates. Each and three Giants in exchange for Bates did not tempt Vernon's millionaire owner, however. McGraw may yet find a capable third sacker. Hunter the Boston school boy. His Jinx is sure to break some time, for it is a long lane, so the good book says.

FOUR BEST BOYS IN THE FIGHT GAME TODAY HAVE MORE SCIENCE THAN REST

The value of science and boxing skill in the fight game today is pretty well displayed in the careers of four leading fighters. Jess Willard, the heavy champ, uses more brains than brawn and the same is true of Jack Dillon, the star of the light heavies; Mike Gibbons, the most brilliant middleweight, and Freddie Welsh, who holds the lightweight honors.

How a cigarette can be sensible

Take Fatimas, for instance. They are always cool and comfortable to the throat and tongue. And they allow you to smoke as you'd like to smoke without any mean feeling after a long-smoking day. That's sensible, isn't it?

And Fatimas are dependable. They never trifle. They never vary. They deliver the exact qualities that most men want in their steady cigarette. That, too, is sensible.

Isn't it about time you tried a sensible cigarette like Fatimas?

JANESVILLE PIRATES WIN FROM THE WHITE SOX NINE

The Jamesville Pirates defeated the Janesville White Sox at the Stafford diamond by the score of 11 to 2, on Saturday. The home run by Babecock was the feature of the game. The battery work of K. Decker and McGinley won the game for the Pirates, along with the heavy clouting. The line-ups for the two teams was as follows: Pirates—McGinley, c; Decker, p; Barriage, ss; Babecock, 1b; Kuskie, 2b; J. Barriage, 3b; Burk, 1b; Omer and Oas, fielders. White Sox—Henning, c; McDermott, p; Anderson, ss; Kiska, 1b; Daly, 2b; Heald, 3b; McDermott, Ambrose, Shamrock, fielders, and Anderson, sub.

COMMON AMERICAN BIRDS

INTERESTING INFORMATION ABOUT THEM SUPPLIED BY THE BUREAU OF BIOLOGICAL SURVEY OF THE UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

DOWNY WOODPECKER

Dryobates pubescens

Length, six inches. Our smallest woodpecker; spotted with black and white. Dark bars on the outer tail feathers distinguish it from the similarly colored but larger hairy woodpecker.

Range: Resident in the United States and the forested parts of Canada and Alaska.

Habits and economic status: This woodpecker is commonly distributed, living in woodland tracts, orchards, and gardens. The bird has several characteristic notes, and, like the hairy woodpecker, is fond of beating on a dry resonant tree branch a tattoo which to appreciative ears has the quality of woodland music. In a hole excavated in a dead branch the downy woodpecker lays four to six eggs. This and the hairy woodpecker are among our most valuable allies, their food consisting of some of the worst foes of orchard and woodland, which the woodpeckers are especially equipped to dig out of dead and living wood. In the examination of 723 stomachs of this bird, animal food, mostly insects, was found to constitute 76 per cent of the diet and vegetable matter 24 per cent. The animal food consists largely of beetles that bore into timber or burrow under the bark. Caterpillars amount to 16 per cent of the food and include many especially harmful species. Grasshopper eggs are freely eaten. The vegetable food of the downy woodpecker consists of small fruit and seeds, mostly of wild species. It distributes seeds of poison ivy, or poison oak, which is about the only fault of this very useful bird.

To Remove Moisture From Cans. No matter how good the quality of your coffee the beverage will not be up to the standard unless the coffee can be sweet and clean. I have found that by dropping a lump of sugar into the coffee can, after it has been thoroughly cleaned, and keeping it there until again used, the sugar may absorb every trace of moisture in the can and keep it sweet and fresh. Of course, a fresh lump of sugar must be used each time.—New York Evening Sun.

Thief Shows Originality. Thieves are not common in Alaska, but when one does appear he generally exhibits an originality of conduct difficult for less accomplished folks to comprehend. As an instance of this characteristic a thief broke into a store at Douglas recently and stole all the 1916 tags provided for licensed dogs, thus subjecting every canine in town to the danger of being taken up by the dog catcher.

The Sabbath afternoon prayer, praise and conference meeting which it inaugurated over a year and a half ago, has been steadily increasing in interest and attendance. ## TELLS OF INSPECTING GARY SCHOOL SYSTEM

F. C. GRANT DESCRIBES IMPRES-

GET VALUABLE IDEAS

Building Capacity Doubled And Emphasis Placed on Industrial Subjects With Playgrounds
an Important Value.

F. C. Grant, a member of the Janesville board of education, who, in company with Superintendent H. C. Buell, made an inspection of the Gary school system at Gary, Ind., last week, as authorized by the local board at their last meeting, gives his impressions of the visit in the interview for the Gazette. It is plain that some valuable ideas were gained which may be profitably applied to the Janesville schools although it would be impossible to adopt the Gary plan in its entirety at present, no matter how favorably it might be received. Mr. Grant and Mr. Buell will make full reports at the next meeting of the board and their suggestions will have been heard on plans for proposed alterations and improvements in the Janesville school system. Following is Mr. Grant's interview.

When Mr. Buell and I visited the first of the Gary schools to see what we could find that might be of advantage to the Janesville public schools, and especially for use in an additional plant to our high school, we were directed to a lady, whose sole duty is to take charge of visitors. If any came to Gary were to see the school superintendent, Mr. Buell, he would have little time for anything but interviews. So much has been published in journals, magazines and government reports about the Gary school system that people come from the four corners of the earth to study it. So Mr. Buell has taken one of the school teachers, Miss Stright, a charming and capable woman, who taught eight years and pays her salary out of her own pocket, to devote her time to the visitors. She told us that she was guided a few days before to a party which included a man from Texas, one from California, one from Oregon, one from Boston, Mr. Buell and I had with us during a portion of our visit a Japanese professor from the Superior normal school of Hiroshima, Japan.

The Gary plan of changing the ordinary public school system consists fundamentally in two things: First, separating the children in a large school instead of in many small ones; and second, in doubling capacity of the school building by providing sufficient shop, gymnasium, auditorium and other ground room, so that two sets of pupils can be taught simultaneously, one occupying the seats in the classroom while the others are busy in the laboratories, the vocational rooms and wait other facilities.

In Gary, which has forty to forty-five thousand people, and is growing fast, this means a great building for each school to accommodate from two to three thousand pupils. Since the cost is $250,000 to $300,000, and with sufficient land about it for play grounds and a school garden. Each of these schools is a complete institution in all branches from kindergarten to the senior high school studies, for there is no separate high school, so a child attends the one school in his neighborhood throughout his entire public school life.

These two features, the concentration of the pupils in large buildings and the doubling of the capacity of each school, by providing that two sets of children may get instructions simultaneously, seems to be modern efficiency as applied to school work. There is evident economy in the number of buildings and in their administration and economy in the number of teachers. There are distinct advantages to the pupils, for in the large buildings, features can be provided that could not be duplicated in a number of smaller ones. It is claimed that the system as a whole effects a financial saving, because so many facilities for study are furnished. But it is plain that the people get a great deal more for their money.

The Froebel school at Gary, their largest building, cost about $300,000. It has 1,800 pupils and can accommodate about 2,800. It has 12 acres of school gardens, in which the children plant vegetables and flowers, a park, (care for by the children), fine laboratories for physics and nature studies, a printing office, where they publish a school paper, a shoe shop, where the children mend their own shoes, and mend their tennis and gymnasium shoes, a blacksmith shop, foundry, paint shop, carpenter shop, plumbing shop, and perhaps others, each with an actual workman in charge, who is paid union wages. Under them the boys do all the work about the school, such as painting, if a teacher needs electrical apparatus and wiring, and making the school fittings. Under the commercial department, they run a school band and keep all the school accounts. The domestic science room runs a cafeteria, where lunch is served every day for the teachers and pupils at nominal prices. The Emerson school, with 600 pupils, and accommodation for about 1,200, is identical with the Froebel except in size. They are now preparing to build a duplicate of the Froebel, for the city will soon need it. So far as we could learn, the parents as well as the children like the schools. The school board, through all changes of membership, has supported the system, and the teachers, our guide said, all grow like it, though the school days are long, 8:30 a. m. to 4:15 p. m., and school goes on through the noon hour, half the children going to lunch at 11:15, and half at 12:15, and if a teacher doesn't like it, one of the officers reminds "we have a thousand applications on file."

In one of these buildings the visitor finds a confusion of laughing and talking children going to and fro in the corridors to their next "period" and to the lockers where they keep their books and wraps. Even in the various class rooms, there is much freedom in talking and moving about, so that many visitors have commented upon it; but after a day's observation, Mr. Buell's decision was that the discipline and conduct there was as good as in any school. Our guide told us that "they act as they would at home; they talk to the teachers as they would to their mother."

We visited the auditorium in one school—a complete theatre as to appointments—where children were being trained in choral singing. They went out, and another crowd of first and second graders came in to be entertained by marching evolutions and folk dancing by eighth or ninth grade girls, who came there for that purpose instead of going to the gymnasium. There were also moving picture exhibitions for younger children. In all of these exercises, I noticed that the children sometimes came in and looked on, and conduct themselves as if they were without any definite occasion, and asked about them. Our guide said: "This is one of their play periods. They prefer to stay in the school grounds and conduct their play there. They go and look on in the shops and laboratories, or come here, as they choose. We think they absorb something, and we permit it, so long as they are not a necessary amount of playground work."

I got a new idea there of the value of supervised play. Men and women play directors are on duty at the play grounds always. They teach the children to play. Through the play, the children learn to play fair; to be just; they learn self-control, discipline and loyalty, and there are few of the virtues that they are not taught right there; and as this supervision comes every day during all the years of their attendance at school, it unquestionably counts. I saw a letter in their school paper from a minister who took some of the school boys on a hike, in which he testified to his pleased surprise at their good manners, good language and conduct. Our guide told us they had little trouble with truancy and the cigarette habit.

Of the many features of which there is no time to speak, one novel one impressed me. Each teacher has a "discharge" usually about forty pages in length, which is her particular field. She visits these homes and gets acquainted with the parents. If she stays in a school for years, as most of them do, she comes to know not only the children of her district, but all of their families intimately. She knows the income of each, knows all their troubles and successes, knows what Tommy's father drinks or works steadily; she becomes the adviser of the mother as well as of the children. She brings the parents to the school, she tries to know it and to use it. The mother comes there often during the day and the father in the evening. The teacher also by her knowledge of the families, checks up the school census and supplements the medical and mental inspection. There is a map in each school with every pupil's residence dotted upon it, and if Johnny Smith gets scarlet fever, a little red flag is put up on the map over Johnny's home very promptly.

Many cities are adopting the Gary plan, including such large ones as New York and Pittsburgh, but it is obvious that it is not practicable to at once adopt a system in a city where the buildings are already constructed according to the old plan. Any changes toward it must be made gradually, in Janesville, for instance, it would mean the concentration of the children who are now in ten buildings, in perhaps three large ones, of which the present high school and its addition might be one. The other two new buildings which have to be built would cost something like $200,000 each. Janesville would hardly venture upon such a step, however, desirable as the result might be, and it is wise to go slowly in such a revolution. However, Mr. Buell was much pleased with various features that we saw, and planned the partial adoption of the system in one or two of our present schools, and possibly some changes in the new high school, which I will leave to him to speak of.

CLUB WOMEN FLOCK TO NEW YORK CITY TO ATTEND BIENNIAL

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, May 22.—Local delegates to the biennial convention of General Federation of Women's Clubs, are busy today, welcoming club women from the west and south at the railroad and steamship terminals. About 5,000 clubwomen are here already and 15,000 are expected.

For weeks their departure, Indiana delegates held informal indignation meetings, enlarging on a twenty-line paragraph of instructions entitled, "Correct Dress at the Coming Biennial," published under the name of Miss Mary A. Peck, "State Chairman C. S. R., and a New Yorker," in which she informed the delegates from outlying states how they should dress while in New York so as not to appear in poor taste.

"Many delegates do not know that New York women wear only strictly tailored suits on the streets or at business meetings, and little or no jewelry," began the instructions. "That woman could never have seen Fifth avenue," declared one of Indiana's most prominent club women.

Southern women were instructed by Miss Peck to discard their spring suits for their last winter ones because their spring suits probably have light colors. "Preferably, choose black," said Miss Peck.

"Wear Small Hats."
"It is also advisable to wear small hats. Well dressed women avoid the large ones," continued the "New Yorker."

"These, with gloves and comfortable shoes, will leave them ready to enjoy their visit." The Indiana women quietly went ahead with their plans. Today's special train would be done at a disadvantage if mention only were made of the Pullman coaches. The baggage cars were filled to overflowing with trunks, large and small, and the average was about two and one-third per delegate. Costumes are to be changed about every eight minutes at the biennial.

To Indiana falls the honor of supplying Mrs. P. V. Pennypacker, federation president, with her aide, Mrs. Elizabeth Claypool Barr of Connerville, will be seated at Mrs. Pennypacker's right during the convention, assisting the president in her arduous duties. Incident to presiding over America's most interesting gathering of women.

Mrs. Earl affects soft grays and lavenders, which strikingly contrast with her beautiful, abundant white hair.

An army of 20,000 women, mobilized from the ranks of 2,000,000 clubwomen in every state and possession of the United States, began the invasion of Manhattan today for the opening of the 13th Biennial convention of the Federated Women's clubs of America in the Seventh Regiment armory here tomorrow.

As the squads, companies, regiments and battalions of handsomely gowned femininity trooped along the platform from the long trains pulling into Grand Central, Pennsylvania station and Hudson Terminal from California, Florida, Maine and other parts of the country, they are taken in hand by Boy Scouts in khaki, who see them safely delivered to their appointed places. Other scouts go around afterward and give them printed and oral instructions about getting here and there in New York. Still other scouts look after their luggage.

Thanks to these aids and the hard working arrangements committee under the direction of Mrs. North McLean of the New York Federation the 20,000 will be comfortably settled in New York town and on their way to hear Mrs. Percy V. Pennypacker of Texas bang the big gavel on the steel sounding board that will call the convention to order.

Make Town Hum.
From that moment on until the night of June 2 the women leaders of the nation will make this old town hum with speeches and squabbles and social affairs and all those other exciting events that women bring about when they get together. They will give the world their official opinion on government and goulash, food and fighting, marriage and millionaires, babies and banting, health and hairdressing, short skirts and short ballots, big wives and little husbands, prizefights and readlights and many, many other matters of general interest.

There has been evidence of some rather sharp feeling between the city and country delegates, over the matter of style, which may crop up in some form during the convention.

The only open display of feeling on the point thus far comes from the Indiana delegation, whose members have expressed themselves as being quietly determined to ignore advice and instructions from New York, distributed gratis through the Federation's magazines telling how to dress. Indiana women are enroute here on while here. One hundred wealthy delegates, a special train to attend the convention.

Mrs. Grace Julian Clarke, one of the directors of the general federation who also will be seen on the platform, dresses quietly, but always in extremely good taste.

Federation Officers.
Mrs. Carolyn R. Fairbank of Fort

Wayne, president of the Indiana Federation, who is on the program also is one of Indiana's best dressers.
Mrs. John N. Carey of Indianapolis, often spoken of as the best dressed woman in Indiana, who recently was elected honorary vice president general of the General D. A. R., has trunks full of wonderful lace gowns, hat and gloves; and her jewel cases—well!
Mrs. Albion Fellows Bacon of Evansville, writer, housing authority, and the woman who twirls Indiana's legislature about her little finger, prefers lavenders and grays. She will be seen in a stunning lavender and gold evening gown and will wear a lavender mandarin coat.

Others of the party who are sure to attract attention "even among the 'New Yorkers'" are Mrs. John Worth Kern, wife of the United States senator; Mrs. Samuel M. Halston, wife of Indiana's governor, and Mrs. Felix T. Gurnea, wife of the state treasurer. One Indiana woman, commenting on what she considers the attempt of New York club women to dictate to out-of-town delegates, dress, said: "The instructions of Mrs. Mary A. Peck were not only in very poor taste—they were insulting to every woman outside New York."

"New York women seem to have the idea that they are about to entertain a lot of country women. We do not relish this 'country cousin' idea. We will not be henpecked by Miss Peck."
